Our top 4 trends

Drawing inspiration from current interior design trends is a way to create contemporary masterpieces that last. In 2026, trends are taking a more uplifting approach with harmony, warmth and personality blending to create a meaningful interior.

1

Warm Neutrals

Soft, warm neutrals infuse the space with quiet sophistication.

Consider a grounded palette

We've paired soft clay with warm stone to create a cosy and welcoming atmosphere.

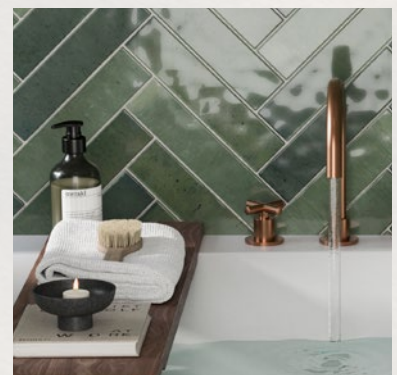

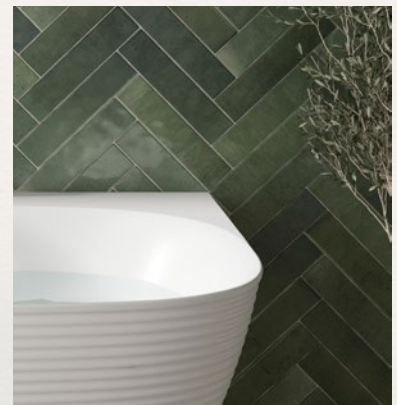

2

Natural Elements

Natural, organic materials create depth, comfort and a connection to nature.

Think colour & texture

We've chosen a wooden texture and green features for a calming interior reminiscent of the natural world.

3 Statement Textures

Focal points are taking on an artistic role with big visual impact and creativity.

Cohesion is essential

Pairing a fluted bath with a subtle fluted element incorporated into the furniture creates unity throughout the space.

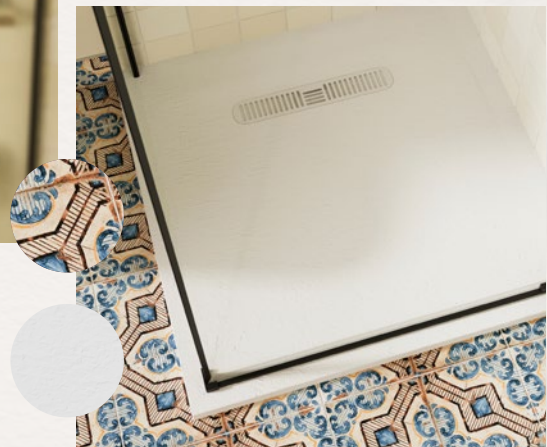

4 Character-rich design

Character-filled imperfection and authenticity bring depth, soul and personality to interiors.

Embrace individuality

Choose character-rich items that make the space feel personal.

Warm neutrals

Interiors are moving away from the dominance of cool greys and stark whites, embracing a softer, more grounded palette where warm neutrals become the new modern classic. Shades of beige, clay and soft terracotta now take the place of pure white to create a welcoming and homely atmosphere.

Infuse your space with a sense of warmth and quiet sophistication by colour-drenching your walls with a warm neutral. To make the colour pop, opt for a lighter complementary neutral for your vanity unit, such as our Avenue furniture in Warm Stone. Continue the soft aesthetic throughout your space with a textured stone shower tray and open walk-in shower design. Elevate the sophisticated, homely appeal with traditional Belgravia brassware and accessories to tie the room together.

Natural elements

A balanced fusion of natural elements and modern lines defines the space, creating an atmosphere that feels both contemporary and grounded. The design celebrates natural, organic materials, textures and colours, bringing warmth and tactility to every surface. There is a strong emphasis on materials that feel authentically organic, such as wood and stone, layered to create depth and comfort.

Create a quiet sense of connection to nature in your home with organic materials such as our Limit bathroom furniture range. This collection displays a beautiful natural wood grain for a calming aesthetic. Finish your vanity unit with a marble worktop to elevate the connection to the natural world. Layer your design with green focal points and warm accents, such as Brushed Bronze brassware, to enhance the welcoming and cosy feel.

Statement textures

Focal points are taking on an artistic role with bold, sculptural silhouettes creating eye-catching features. Chunky, curved elements and generous proportions create a sense of comfort and visual impact, turning everyday fixtures into statement art forms. These forms are being coupled with intriguing textures to create a statement. The result is an interior landscape that feels both dynamic and beautifully intentional.

Bring these artistic forms into your bathroom with the introduction of the Auriga fluted bath. This freestanding bath displays a bold sculptural curved silhouette, complete with a striking fluted exterior. Complement this eye-catching feature with the Tambour furniture unit. Tambour features a statement curved front with a contrasting fluted wooden backboard, enhancing the visual interest.

Character-rich design

There is a growing appreciation for authenticity, where beauty is being found in unique, personal touches. This design style celebrates individuality, favouring unique, character-rich items that tell your story. Often coupled with wooden, natural features and interesting accents, the result is an interior that feels warm, welcoming and deeply human.

The colour palette found with this design style lends itself perfectly to raw wooden features, such as this Avenue furniture unit in Windsor Oak. Create visual interest by contrasting this light, natural finish with a darker accent colour, like Matt Black. This can be used throughout the space to make your personal elements pop. Complete the look with character-rich and natural décor, bringing life and individuality to the design.

Texture in the bathroom

The right balance of texture in your bathroom design can influence the atmosphere as well as the sensory experience of the room. Typically, bathroom fixtures, tiles and flooring consist of a very smooth texture. To add depth to your design as well as warmth and personality, consider bringing in contrasting textures to break up the hard, flat surfaces. Introducing texture into your bathroom also creates a treat for the senses by allowing you to connect with your space more deeply.

The first way you can bring texture into your bathroom and elevate your sensory experience is with our Vito textured shower tray. This subtle texture is reminiscent of a soft, gently pitted natural stone that creates a soothing sensation underfoot. Texture can also be used to create visual interest. Our Auriga bath features a soft, curved form with a striking fluted texture on the exterior, breaking up the flat surfaces and creating contrast. For a truly intriguing design, continue this texture through to your vanity unit with our Tambour and Limit furniture collections, each offering a beautiful fluted wooden texture at varying scales.
